

Workers' Voice
Validation Survey

Stakeholder Marketing Kit

Building evidence-informed models that can strengthen and improve outcomes for workers and schemes nationwide.

Help improve Australia's workers' compensation systems

Participate in a national research survey - share with your network.

About the study

Researchers from Monash University and the University of Melbourne are conducting a national study to define how workers' compensation systems operate across Australia. We would like your expert input to help us understand how these systems work.

This survey aims to:

- Consolidate expert perspectives on how workers' compensation systems function across States and Territories.
- Identify areas where systems can be strengthened or made more consistent.
- Support the development of consumer and evidence-informed tools for research and policy.

What's involved

- Complete an online survey (40–45 minutes).
- Review and comment on diagrams showing examples of workers' compensation system processes.
- Share your expert opinions on which examples are most realistic and why.

Participation is voluntary and confidential.

Why take part

We recognise that your organisation's leaders and professionals work in and with these systems every day.

Your organisational insights will be extremely valuable in ensuring that models reflect the realities of scheme design and operation.

By contributing your insights, you will help us build a more complete picture of Australia's compensation landscape - one that can inform policy decisions and improve outcomes for injured workers and schemes alike.

Survey link:

<https://go.monash.edu/unim-elb-study>

Scan:

Copy-and-paste content

Social Media - Facebook and LinkedIn

Links:

Website: www.workersvoice.com.au

Survey link: <https://go.monash.edu/unimelb-study>

Tag us

LinkedIn: @HealthyWorkingLivesResearchGroup

Facebook: @workersvoiceAU

Copy:

Researchers from Monash University and the University of Melbourne are conducting a study to understand how workers' compensation schemes operate across Australia. We are seeking input from people who have worked in and around workers' compensation systems to seek their expert knowledge about how they operate.

Participants are asked to:

- Complete a 40–45 minute online survey
- Review sample diagrams of system processes
- Share insights on which representations reflect real-world practice

Your experience working within or alongside these systems is invaluable.

By contributing, you'll help build evidence-informed models that can strengthen and improve outcomes for workers and schemes nationwide.

Link to the plain language statement and survey: <https://go.monash.edu/unimelb-study>

(Voluntary and confidential)

Social Media Image

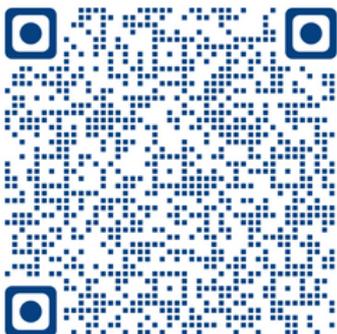

Social Media - Facebook and LinkedIn Post & QR code

Download tile.

Help strengthen Australia's workers'
compensation
systems.

Take the survey.

workersvoice.com.au

Contact Us

School of Public Health and Preventive Medicine

Monash University
553 St Kilda Road
Melbourne, Victoria 3004

Communications Manager:

Kara.Tyndall@monash.edu

Chief Investigator:

Alex.Collie@monash.edu

Research Fellow:

Samineh.Sanatk@monash.edu

Media Enquiries:

media@monash.edu

General Enquires:

info@workersvoice.com.au

Facebook: @WorkersVoiceAU

Website:

www.workersvoice.com.au